Editorial Correspondence.

LONDON, ENGLAND, July 28, 1900.

In a quiet, winding street in a poor quarter of London is a quaint little shop which has a sentimental interest for most American tourists. It is the original "Old Curiosity Shop," made famous by Charles Dickens, the novelist, in his beautiful story "The Old Curiosity Shop." The place has two small rooms—one eight by ten feet, and the other six by eight—and it is kept, as in Dickens' time, by an old man and his daughter, who sell medallions of Dickens, prints of his famous characters, besides many curios. The shop is about three hundred years old and bids fair to stand another century. The place is visited by an average of one hundred visitors every day in the year, and almost everyone buys some kind of a souvenir. The old shop-keeper always has just one left, but I saw him find half a dozen more after he had let me have the last one. "The Golden Cross Inn," another place made noted by Dickens, is also pointed out to the sightseers. A gilt cross is conspicuous in the wall over the door. England has honored the famous novelist by burying him with her illustrious dead in Westminster Abbey, and erecting a bust to his memory. His tomb in the nave of the Abbey is marked with a tablet in the floor. I saw the original manuscript of Dickens' novels on exhibition at the Kensington Museum. The last word he wrote was "appetite."

The Tower of London, being the scene of so many historical and tragic events, is probably the most interesting place in England to sightseers. The ground for the Tower was selected by William the Conqueror, and the buildings were commenced as early as 1078. The buildings have been added to by almost every succeeding ruler, and Queen Victoria is now having a new building erected within the walls. The Tower of London was erected for the double purpose of protecting the port of London and overawing the citizens. The Tower and connecting buildings cover more than twenty-six acres, and were used as a fortress, a prison and a palace. The inner wall is guarded by thirteen towers and the outer wall by eight. The entire fortress comprises nearly fifty buildings, being a village in itself. In early days the Tower was used as a State prison and many titled persons entered its walls never to leave them alive. It was within the Tower walls that Queen Anne Boleyn, Lady Jane Grey, Queen Katharine Howard, and two scores of earls, dukes and countesses were beheaded, giving one of the principal buildings the name of "Bloody Tower." It was here also that Edward V and his brother, Richard, Duke of York, were murdered at the instigation of Richard III. The Tower has several chapels within its walls where religious services were held. Part of the Tower is now used for barracks for recruits to the army and other parts are used as a museum for armor and arms used by Kings and noblemen in centuries gone by, and as a museum for arms captured by the English in battle. Many columns might be written about this famous place, but the lack of space will not permit a more extended account.

While in the Tower of London I saw the Regalia of England, or the crown jewels—kept in a double iron cage in the Tower. Nearly all of the historical objects in this case date from the restoration of Charles II. Queen Victoria's crown occupies the highest place in the case, it being used at her coronation in 1838. It is a superb crown, weighing nearly forty ounces, and is gorgeous, but very tasty in design. The circlet is of silver, surrounding a crimson velvet cap, bordered with ermine. From the circlet rise four silver branches which support arches made from precious stones. In the crown are 2,783 diamonds, 277 pearls, five rubies, seventeen sapphires and eleven emeralds. The magnificent sapphire in the center was worn by Edward the Confessor. Other crowns in the case were made for Queen Mary of Modena and Queen Mary II and Charles the II. Among the other crown jewels in the case are the Prince of Wales' Coronet, the Royal Sceptre, of gold, nearly three feet long, ornamented with diamonds, rubies and emeralds. The Sceptre, made in 1661, is of gold, three feet seven inches long, St. Edward's Staff, a gold sceptre, nearly five feet long, three other royal sceptres, gold spurs, bracelets, golden salt-cellars, golden tankards, silver-gilt baptismal font used at royal christenings, and silver-gilt communion plates. Other objects in this Tower are the badges of the various orders of Knighthood conferred by the Kings and the Queens. These royal jewels are strongly guarded by soldiers in the Tower. Visitors are admitted to the Jewel Tower for a fee of sixpence.

The Shirt Waist Man.

This shirt waist man has been occupying the attention of the public at large for the past six weeks and he is gladly received at some places, but gets the frozen face at other places.

The management of the Paris Grand Opera House will refuse to seat countless men.

The Phoenix Hotel cafe at Lexington refused on Saturday night to serve four shirt waist men from Georgetown.

Ex-Gov. Northen led a brigade of shirt waist men Friday night at a luncheon in the Hotel Majestic, in Atlanta.

The Louisville Elks, 800 strong, have adopted the shirt waist uniform for their big carnival during week of Sept. 17th. The waist will be white and purple stripes running up and down. They will look well on all except the fat Elks.

The Galt House in Louisville is "dead again" the shirt waist man, and the Louisville Hotel thinks he ought to be called Pearl or Mand or Ethel.

Versailles young men gave a shirt waist dance one night last week.

Some of the shirt waist girls are also coming in for a share of comment. A dispatch from St. Louis says that Rev. Father C. A. Reis, of St. Liberious Catholic Church refuses to serve communion to young women who wear open-work waists of certain patterns. He regards the fashion as being vulgar.

A few Cincinnati women are working the lace-yolk shirt waist to a daring limit. On Fourth street Friday the writer saw a fair-fat-and-forty woman exposing about fifty pounds of gleaming white flesh through a black lace yolk and sleeves.

THEY MAY BE FIGHTING

Chinese Have Rallied Their Forces and Are Preparing to Attack the Allies.

COMMUNICATION HAS BEEN CUT OFF

It is Generally Regarded That the Allies, If Besieged, Can Take Care of Themselves.

No Confirmation of the Report That Russia, Germany and Japan Have Declared War on China—The Latest Chinese Situation.

Washington, Aug. 27.—A dispatch was received at the Japanese legation from the foreign office from Japan conveying the latest and most authentic information of the situation in and around Peking. In a measure the advices were of a disquieting nature, as they indicated that the Chinese had rallied their forces and were preparing for an attack upon the allies in Peking. If it should prove that the allied forces were besieged in Peking, it would account for the lack of advices from Gen. Chaffee. As made public by Minister Takahira, the dispatch from the Japanese foreign office at Tokio is as follows:

"An official telegram, dated Peking, August 18, was received at Tokio from Gen. Yamaguchi, commander of the Japanese forces, to the following effect: 'The capital is now entirely cleared of the enemy. A cavalry regiment, which had been sent to Wan Shau Shan, where the empress dowager's palace is located, reports that the imperial family, who had left Peking August 14, started, after a short rest at Wan Shau Shan, for the west and were under the escort of Gen. Ma and his troops, consisting of only about 500 horsemen and 20 carts. The Japanese forces occupied the treasury department, in which over 2,000,000 taels in silver and a large quantity of rice were found.'

"Another telegraphic dispatch, dated Taku, August 23, states that, as the Chinese troops and Boxers who had gathered at Nan Yuen, were about to attack the foreign forces at Peking, Japanese and Russian cavalry were expected to encounter them on the 20th. The dispatch further states that Chinese infantry, some 9,000 strong, with 15 guns, are advancing forward from Shantung to make a rear attack on the allies."

A brief dispatch from Che-Foo, conveying a rumor current there that Russia, Germany and Japan had joined in a declaration of war against China aroused some interested comment among Washington officials and among diplomatic representatives of foreign governments resident here. In neither official nor diplomatic circles, however, was the rumor taken seriously. No information of such action has reached either the department of state or the legations of the governments principally interested.

Whether, in the event of a declaration of war by one or more powers against China, an invitation would be extended to the United States to retire from China, as intimated in the dispatch from Che-Foo, is open to doubt, and it is decidedly problematical, it is said, whether the invitation would be accepted, even if it were tendered.

London, Aug. 27.—The latest news from Peking indicates that the situation there is unchanged. The imperial city is still invested, but has not yet been occupied. The allies, when the last message left, were still refraining from aggressive action pending instructions from their governments. An attack from 30,000 Boxers was anticipated, and to meet this the whole American force and the British artillery, according to a dispatch to the Morning Post from Peking, dated August 18, were moved to the outer city wall. The Boxers were reported coming from the south.

The Peking correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, wiring August 19, reasserts that the empress dowager fled westward, and adds: "She has a body guard of 1,500, and as the mountainous character of the country would prevent artillery following."

Washington, Aug. 26.—A cablegram has been received from Adm. Remy in which he states that it is reported that the Russian commander at Peking has forbidden any communication between his forces and the Chinese.

Paris, Aug. 26.—Gen. Frey, commanding the French forces at Peking, telegraphs from there under date of August 20:

"The allies have driven the Boxers from all the points they occupied. The allies are camped outside of the imperial palace, which was occupied by some soldiers of the regular Chinese army. The generals decided to march international forces through the palace doors, which were afterwards closed."

Slugged and Robbed.
Omaha, Neb., Aug. 24.—E. E. Hatch, assistant cashier of the Omaha national bank was slugged and robbed in his berth early Thursday morning on the Chicago and Northwestern train coming from Chicago to Omaha. He offered resistance and was badly pounded on the head. Eugene Amoretti, jr., of Wyoming, also a passenger on the same train, was robbed. Other passengers and the conductor heard no outcry, and before the alarm was given the robbers escaped. It is not known how much they secured.

RACE RIOT RENEWED.

New York Police Busy in Making Arrests and Dispersing Disturbers of the Peace.

New York, Aug. 27.—A number of incipient race riots broke out here Sunday, the direct cause being the shooting Saturday night of John Brennan, a white messenger boy, aged 20, by John Davis, alias "Lamplighter," a Negro. Brennan was one of a crowd of whites who taunted Davis, and bullets from the black's revolver lodged in his stomach and chest. He is in a hospital and likely to die. The shooting was done on 62d street, and, becoming noised about, the rough white element began to search out Negroes.

Before daybreak Sunday morning James Arnold, colored, while passing 64th street and Amsterdam avenue, was attacked by a crowd of whites and badly beaten. He was treated at a hospital. Shortly afterward about two blocks away the gang doled out a similar experience to Alexander Balleentine, a colored man, who was passing quietly along. In neither case were arrests made.

At 9:30 o'clock in the morning a crowd of whites led by Frank McPike, 24 years old, went to a five-story tenement on 60th street, occupied by Negroes, with the avowed purpose of cleaning it out. They had about demolished all the windows and incidentally cracked a head or two when the police arrived. McPike and another man were arrested.

At 1:30 p. m. Joseph Doyle, 18 years old, filled his hat with stones and took his stand at 59th street and 11th avenue. He succeeded in inflicting scalp wounds on two colored men before a policeman clubbed and arrested him.

Officer John J. Cleary placed under arrest for "being sassy" William Hopson, a colored man. He rashly undertook to take his prisoner to the station through West 60th street. That street between West End and Amsterdam avenues is called "Cuckoo Row," and here colored people live by the hundred. The fact that one of their race was in the hands of a policeman was all that several of them wanted, and half a dozen of them thought they would release Hopson. Cleary used his club and then drew his revolver. By threatening to shoot the first man to move he held the mob at bay until other policemen came to his aid. They arrested George Meyer, also colored. Cleary said he started the attempted rescue. Meyer resisted arrest all the way to the station, and when he got there he had several scalp wounds. One in particular was very large, and it is thought the Negro's skull was fractured.

William and Henry Rapp, brothers and white, were arrested and locked up on complaint of Adam Johnson, colored, who claimed they had stoned him. The above are only a few assaults which came to light by arrests. The fact is that all day long the police in the neighborhood mentioned were kept busy dispersing small mobs bent on mischief.

WARSHIP AT TANGIER.

It Is There to Support the Claim Arising Out of the Murder of an American Citizen.

Tangier, Morocco, Aug. 27.—A United States warship has arrived here to support the claim arising out of the murder last June of Marcus Essagin, a naturalized American citizen who was the manager of the Fez branch of the French firm of Braunsweig & Co. Essagin, while riding on horseback through a narrow street in Tangier, jolted against the mule of a Moroccan religious fanatic and a dispute ensued, the crowd siding with the priest. In self-defense Essagin drew his revolver and fired, wounding a native. This was the signal for a general attack upon the American, who received dozens of knife wounds and whose body was burned, according to some accounts, before life was extinct.

WANTS TO KILL BRYAN.

Wm. Williams, Alleged Anarchist, Employed in an Omaha Hotel, Placed Under Arrest.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 26.—William M. Williams, an alleged anarchist, who is employed in the Saelter Hotel, in this city, announced to one of his fellow workmen Saturday morning that he was going to kill William J. Bryan when he came to attend the Jacksonian picnic Saturday afternoon. The police were notified and arrested him an hour later. Every precaution is being taken to prevent anything happening to Mr. Bryan while in the city.

Population of Kansas City.

Washington, Aug. 26.—The population of Kansas City, Mo., as announced by the census bureau is 163,752. The population for 1890 was 132,716. This is an increase of 31,036 or 23.36 per cent. The population of Kansas City Kas., also just announced, is 51,418, against 35,316 in 1890. This is an increase of 16,102, or 45.6 per cent.

THE BOERS ARE ACTIVE

A Large Force Threatening the Johannesburg Railway Line.

Two Companies of the Liverpool Regiment Were Surrounded by Transvaalers in a Hollow and Suffered Severely.

Pretoria, Aug. 26.—The Boer commandant, Delarey, with a large force is threatening the stations along the Johannesburg line. He recently demanded the surrender of a British garrison. The demand was refused. Gen. DeWet has crossed the railroad 20 miles south of Krugersdorp, bound toward the Vaal. Some of his abandoned wagons have been captured.

London, Aug. 26.—Lord Roberts has left Pretoria and has fixed his headquarters at Wonderfontein, the second station west of Machadodorp, where the bulk of the Boers in arms are supposed to be. Wiring from there, August 24, he says:

"Buller reports the Boers laid a trap for his cavalry, August 23, opening with several guns at fairly short range. The English guns silenced the Boers, but when the firing ceased and the pickets were being placed for the night by some mistake two companies of the Liverpool regiment advanced 1,500 yards into a hollow out of sight of the main body, where they were surrounded by the Boers and suffered severely."

The Liverpool lost ten men killed and Capt. Plonier and 45 men wounded. In addition, they had 32 men missing.

Gen. Buller's other casualties, August 23, were 20 men killed, wounded or missing. Lord Roberts also wires that Gen. Pole-Carew occupied Belfast, near Machadodorp, August 24, without opposition.

Gen. French, with four brigades of cavalry, is moving east of Machadodorp.

The dispatch of the British commander-in-chief in South Africa says: "There is a welcome green over the veldt, which, I hope, means that riding and transport animals will get grazing shortly. They have fared badly of late."

TESTING BIG GUNS.

An 18-Inch Torpedo Weapon Will Throw a Shell Fifteen Miles—Gun Cotton for Charges.

South Bethlehem, Pa., Aug. 26.—In the presence of Lieut. Gen. Miles, Gen. Wilson, Gen. Huntington and other army officers, the new 18-inch Gathman torpedo gun, the largest ever built in this country, was tested at the Bethlehem steel works, to determine the velocity of the shot and the strength of the gun, and proved a gratifying success. The government made an appropriation of $55,000 for the experiment, and demanded that ten shots be fired, the test to show a pressure of 18,000 pounds per inch and a velocity of 18,000 feet to the second. Solid shot weighing a ton were used.

After two preliminary shots the third was fired with a charge of 300 pounds of powder, and showed a pressure of 19,045 pounds, and 1,896 feet velocity, while the fourth shot with the same charge recorded a pressure of 19,350 pounds and a velocity of 1,901 feet. The remaining six shots will be fired in a few days. The gun is intended for coast defense. The inventor claims that it will throw a shell fifteen miles. Gun cotton will be used in the charges. The gun is 44 feet long, and weighs 59 tons. Gen. Miles, after the test, said he was satisfied with the result.

PNEUMATIC TUBE SERVICE.

It is thought the investigation will be confined to these cities, though it may be found necessary later to add several others. The investigation will begin as soon as possible, and will be conducted in each locality by the respective postmaster and division superintendent of the railway mail service. Their reports and recommendations will be considered later by a general committee of postal experts, who will visit each city in turn.

Percy Sanderson, British consul, asking him to take the necessary steps for their protection. The petition alleges that the mob in the recent riots in this city and that the police, instead of giving them protection, actually urged the mob to great fury.

The consul is reminded that the signers, as subjects of her Britannic majesty, have been educated to respect law and order and the legally constituted authorities, and if permitted will do so. They believe, however, that there is not adequate protection afforded to them under the present circumstances, and Consul Sanderson is respectfully petitioned to take such steps as he deems wise in the premises.

It reached here on the steamer Majestic, after transportation of 17,000 miles. It is good and solid despite its long journey of 70 days. In view of the fine quality and the cheapness and abundance of lambs in Australia, the experiment is regarded with much interest by local butchers.

SACRED SONG SERVICE

The G. A. R. Encampment Opens at Chicago in a Rain Storm.

Veterans and Visitors to the Encampment Came By Thousands on Every Incoming Train—Record-Breaking Attendance.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Despite a rain which fell at times with the energy of a stream from a garden hose and degenerated periodically into a cold, soaking drizzle, the grand patriotic and sacred song service at the Coliseum Sunday night was attended by a throng which taxed the capacity of the immense building to the utmost. The exercises began at 8 o'clock, and between that hour and 7 o'clock the sidewalk on Wabash avenue was impassable for a block in both directions. A large detachment of police was on hand, and the officers had their hands more than full in handling the crowd. The jam in the doorways was terrific, and although none were injured, many gowns and coats were badly wrecked. It is estimated that fully 13,000 people were packed into the hall, and thousands more were unable to gain admission.

Bishop Samuel Fallows, of Chicago, who gained renown as a fighting man on the battlefield before he won distinction in the pulpit, and who is the chairman of the encampment committee on religious exercises, presided. On the platform with him was Mayor Harrison, Commander-in-Chief Shaw, Rev. Thomas C. Bliff, of Salt Lake City, Utah; Gen. Daniel E. Sickles, Rev. E. G. Hirsch, of Chicago, and a host of department commanders of the G. A. R., as well as the local officials in Chicago of the Chicago's encampment.

After a musical selection had been rendered by the band the vast audience joined in the Lord's Prayer, being led by Rev. Frank Gunsaulus, of Chicago, and then Bishop Fallows extended a warm and eloquent welcome to the visiting veterans. A responsive reading was led by Rev. J. D. Severinghaus, of Chicago, and Bishop Fallows then introduced Commander-in-Chief Shaw, who spoke at some length on "True Patriotism." He dwelt upon the services which had been rendered to this nation in particular and to the world at large by the members of the Grand Army, and pointed out the need of training the coming generation in the duties which patriotism demands of the nation's citizens.

Rev. E. G. Hirsch delivered a patriotic address and Rev. T. D. Wallace pronounced the benediction.

Veterans and visitors to the encampment came in by the thousands, every incoming passenger train being packed to the doors. Railroad officials estimated that fully 75,000 people arrived during the day. Of this number 18,000 were members of the G. A. R. Forty-five thousand strangers had arrived previously, over 11,000 of whom were veterans—a total of 29,000 already in the city, and reports from the railroads and from G. A. R. headquarters indicate further arrivals will swell the number to a record-breaking total.

New York, Aug. 27.—On the French line steamer L'Aquitaine, which arrived from Havre, Margaret Minnehan, a former nun, committed suicide by jumping overboard at 5 a. m. on August 23. The alarm was quickly given, a boat was lowered and the woman was picked up, but too late. A Roman Catholic priest among the passengers performed a burial service over the remains, assisted by a number of other priests and nuns who were on board the steamer, and the body was committed to the sea. During the voyage Miss Minnehan had confided to some of her fellow passengers that she had been a nun, but her love for a young man caused her to leave the convent, and she felt she had disgraced her family. She said she was on the way to her brother, a priest who is located in Pennsylvania.

THE RIOTS AT AKRON.

Prison Destroyed—Two Killed in a Fight With the Police.

Many Others on Both Sides Were Seriously Hurt—The City is Now Patrolled by Ohio State Guards.

Akron, O., Aug. 24.—Early Wednesday morning Officer Duffy arrested Louis Peck, colored, about 40 years old. He confessed of having on Monday night attempted to assault Christina, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Maas, industrious and respectable people. The story of his confession spread like wildfire, and a mob of several thousand gathered about the city prison at 8:30 p. m. and forced the doors and made a search of the institution.

Early in the evening the prisoner had been quietly taken away to Cleveland.

A mad rush was then made for the jail, and it soon was in the hands of the mob. They were informed by Sheriff Stone that Peck could not be found there. They went to the courthouse and ransacked that building in the search for the prisoner. A second time the mob visited the city prison and Mayor Young addressed the crowd, saying that Peck had been taken out of the prison at 4 o'clock by Sheriff Kelly and driven out of the city in a closed carriage. The people in the mob would not believe the mayor and continued to yell and demand that Peck be surrendered.

At 10 o'clock the mob attacked the city prison, and those inside defended it. Many shots were exchanged between the mob and officers. Two people were killed and another is dying in the hospital. Many were wounded.

Shortly after midnight the mob broke into a hardware store and stole all the firearms and ammunition they could find, including guns, rifles and revolvers, and proceeded to the city building and opened fire on the defenders and finally set fire to the Columbus hall, which adjoins the city building.

All the officers who had been penned up in the city building for two hours, escaped through a rear window and ran for their lives. The mob then placed dynamite under the city building and partly wrecked that structure. It was later set on fire and completely destroyed.

Akron, O., Aug. 24.—Thousands of people came to this city Thursday to see the ruins of the buildings destroyed by the mob Wednesday night. The city hall has been totally ruined by dynamite and fire.

Chief of Police Harrison has left the city and his whereabouts are unknown. He is suffering from a nervous shock.

Mayor Young Thursday morning issued a proclamation to close all saloons until further orders.

At 3:30 Thursday morning everything was quiet about the ruins of the city building. In the destruction of the building the city has lost all records of the city clerk and also the records of the city engineer. City Engineer Payne said that the loss in his department will be fully a half million. The automobile patrol wagon has been run into the canal. With the approach of dawn Thursday morning the riotous mob which held possession of this city throughout the night melted away, and when the sun rose the streets assumed their usual appearance.

At 6 o'clock Thursday morning Company C, of the 8th Ohio regiment, arrived on a special train from Canton and was at once marched to the scene of Wednesday night's rioting.

The militiamen were at once placed on guard duty around the county buildings, but they found little to do.

The excitement has calmed down, and now the people of Akron are contemplating the smoldering evidences of the wild fury of the mob.

Nine companies of the 4th regiment arrived at 9:20 Thursday morning.

Beside the city building destroyed by the mob, the Columbian building adjoining is a heap of ashes, and several smaller frame buildings in the vicinity are in ruins. The property loss is fully $1,000,000. It is estimated that the mob was composed of not less than 1,500 men.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning it was reported that a portion of the mob had marched to East Akron, broken into a hardware store and stolen a quantity of ammunition and dynamite, together with all the guns in the place, and that it was their intention to charge on the troops at the first demonstration.

Officers commanding the troops say that any attempt to start a riot will be the signal for a charge by militia.

The mob, which has had possession of Akron since early Wednesday night, is still parading the streets, although there is now no organization.

There was no rioting Thursday and affairs are quieting down, the mob being awed by the militia.

BUFFALO TRAGEDY.

Paul Adams Shoots Miss Mary O'Brien and Then Puts a Bullet Through His Own Head.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Paul Adams, 20 years old, shot Miss Mary O'Brien, 40 years old, inflicting an injury that will probably prove fatal, and then shot himself, dying instantly. Miss O'Brien is proprietor of the Majestic, a small hotel, and Adams was until recently her bartender. He became dissipated and generally offensive and was dismissed. The woman, however, concluded to befriend him until he became a nuisance, and then she had him sent to the penitentiary as a vagrant.

As soon as he was released he became intoxicated, went to the hotel and asked Miss O'Brien about a note he had written. Her reply evidently displeased him, and he drew a revolver, firing four shots, one of which took effect in her face. Adams then fired a shot into his head and fell dead.

SETTLEMENT EXPECTED.

Members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers Not to Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Officials of the Republic Iron and Steel Co. and the Illinois Steel Co. deny that there is any prospect of labor troubles in steel and iron circles. The report that the wage question is becoming aggravated and that the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers was about to consider whether or not a strike should be inaugurated, the officials of the two big corporations say, is without foundation.

The question of a wage scale has been under discussion for some time past between the union and the employers, but the discussion is being carried on with the utmost harmony, and a settlement is expected within the next two or three weeks.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

Quick Justice Meted to the Negro Who Caused the Akron Riots.

Hustled on to Columbus, Where He Is Locked Up, Safe From the Mob—Details of the Rapid Trip and Trial.

Akron, O., Aug. 25.—Lewis Peck, the Negro who raped the little Maas girl and caused the Akron riots, had justice meted out to him at quite a rapid rate. Prison Keeper Washer, of this city, went to Cleveland and had a conference with Peck. The prisoner was willing to plead guilty to attempted assault, the penalty for which is 20 years. Washer said no; that if he would not plead guilty to criminal assault, the penalty for which is life imprisonment, he would be taken to Akron for trial. Lewis shuddered at the very thought, but finally agreed to plead guilty to criminal assault and accept a life sentence.

In the meantime a grand jury here indicted Peck on the charge of criminal assault.

After Peck's agreement to plead guilty to criminal assault he was taken to the depot, where a train was taken for this place.

Just after leaving Cuyahoga Falls, while the train was en route from Cleveland to Akron, Peck begged Prison Keeper Washer to shoot him instantly in the event a mob was awaiting at Akron.

The train arrived here at 3:30. A carriage was waiting at the railway station and the streets to the courthouse were patrolled by the state militia. Peck was hustled into a carriage and in three minutes the courthouse was reached.

Few who glanced at the rapidly driven carriage suspected that it contained the man the furious mob of Wednesday night wanted to lynch. Peck was taken in at the rear door of the courthouse. There was a stir among the soldiers crowding to the rear of the court room. Judge D. J. Nye, of Elyria, presided. He had arrived in Akron at noon. Two minutes after Peck reached the court Deputy Sheriff Ed Hershey read the indictment. Peck stood up with manacled hands. He pleaded guilty in a firm voice. His worn eyes shifted nervously about the room. Then he sat down, as a Prosecutor Wanamaker whispered with him briefly.

Then Judge Nye said: "Mr. Peck, you have heard the indictment read charging you with rape. You have pleaded guilty. Have you anything to say?"

"I have nothing to say except that I throw myself on the mercy of the court," replied Peck.

Judge Nye then said: "In crimes such as that to which you have pleaded guilty there is but one penalty provided. That is imprisonment for life. It is the judgment of the court that you be confined in the penitentiary for life. You must pay the costs of this proceeding, and that for the first 30 days of your imprisonment you shall be placed in solitary confinement."

After Peck had been sentenced he was at once taken in a closed carriage to the center street crossing of the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus railway and placed on board the train in charge of Sheriff Kelly and taken on to the state penitentiary at Columbus. So quickly and quietly was Peck brought into the city, sentenced and sent to Columbus that but very few people knew what had transpired. There was no crowd at the railway either when the train arrived or departed.

Columbus, O., Aug. 25.—Peck arrived at the penitentiary in the custody of the sheriff of Summit county at 8:45 o'clock. He felt greatly relieved when the heavy iron gate closed behind him and he realized that he was safe from mob violence. He had little to say and was quickly conducted to a cell.

All three were arrested and taken to the police station, where they made a full confession, saying that when Fee declined to treat they beat his face with their fists and kicked him in the stomach. As they went away Fee staggered to his feet and was knocked down again.

City Prison Destroyed—Two Killed in a Fight With the Police.

Many Others on Both Sides Were Seriously Hurt—The City Is Now Patrolled by Ohio State Guards.

Akron, O., Aug. 24.—Early Wednesday morning Officer Duffy arrested Louis Peck, colored, about 40 years old. He confessed of having on Monday night attempted to assault Christina, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Maas, industrious and respectable people. The story of his confession spread like wildfire, and a mob of several thousand gathered about the city prison at 8:30 p. m. and forced the doors and made a search of the institution.

Early in the evening the prisoner had been quietly taken away to Cleveland.

A mad rush was then made for the jail, and it soon was in the hands of the mob. They were informed by Sheriff Stone that Peck could not be found there. They went to the courthouse and ransacked that building in the search for the prisoner. A second time the mob visited the city prison and Mayor Young addressed the crowd, saying that Peck had been taken out of the prison at 4 o'clock by Sheriff Kelly and driven out of the city in a closed carriage. The people in the mob would not believe the mayor and continued to yell and demand that Peck be surrendered.

At 10 o'clock the mob attacked the city prison, and those inside defended it. Many shots were exchanged between the mob and officers. Two people were killed and another is dying in the hospital. Many were wounded. Shortly after midnight the mob broke into a hardware store and stole all the firearms and ammunition they could find, including guns, rifles and revolvers, and proceeded to the city building and opened fire on the defenders and finally set fire to the Columbus hall, which adjoins the city building.

All the officers who had been penned up in the city building for two hours, escaped through a rear window and ran for their lives. The mob then placed dynamite under the city building and partly wrecked that structure. It was later set on fire and completely destroyed.

Akron, O., Aug. 24.—Thousands of people came to this city Thursday to see the ruins of the buildings destroyed by the mob Wednesday night. The city hall has been totally ruined by dynamite and fire.

Chief of Police Harrison has left the city and his whereabouts are unknown. He is suffering from a nervous shock.

Mayor Young Thursday morning issued a proclamation to close all saloons until further orders.

At 3:30 Thursday morning everything was quiet about the ruins of the city building. In the destruction of the building the city has lost all records of the city clerk and also the records of the city engineer. City Engineer Payne said that the loss in his department will be fully a half million. The automobile patrol wagon has been run into the canal. With the approach of dawn Thursday morning the riotous mob which held possession of this city throughout the night melted away, and when the sun rose the streets assumed their usual appearance.

At 6 o'clock Thursday morning Company C, of the 8th Ohio regiment, arrived on a special train from Canton and was at once marched to the scene of Wednesday night's rioting.

The militiamen were at once placed on guard duty around the county buildings, but they found little to do. The excitement has calmed down, and now the people of Akron are contemplating the smoldering evidences of the wild fury of the mob.

Nine companies of the 4th regiment arrived at 9:20 Thursday morning.

Beside the city building destroyed by the mob, the Columbus building adjoining is a heap of ashes, and several smaller frame buildings in the vicinity are in ruins. The property loss is fully $1,000,000. It is estimated that the mob was composed of not less than 1,500 men.

At 10 o'clock Thursday morning it was reported that a portion of the mob had marched to East Akron, broken into a hardware store and stolen a quantity of ammunition and dynamite, together with all the guns in the place, and that it was their intention to charge on the troops at the first demonstration.

Officers commanding the troops say that any attempt to start a riot will be the signal for a charge by militia.

The mob, which has had possession of Akron since early Wednesday night, is still parading the streets, although there is now no organization.

There was no rioting Thursday and affairs are quieting down, the mob being awed by the militia.

BUFFALO TRAGEDY.

Paul Adams Shoots Miss Mary O'Brien and Then Puts a Bullet Through His Own Head.

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Paul Adams, 29 years old, shot Mary O'Brien, 40 years old, inflicting an injury that will probably prove fatal, and then shot himself, dying instantly. Miss O'Brien is proprietor of the Majestic, a small hotel, and Adams was until recently her bartender. He became dissipated and generally offensive and was dismissed. The woman, however, concluded to befriend him until he became a nuisance, and then she had him sent to the penitentiary as a vagrant.

As soon as he was released he became intoxicated, went to the hotel and asked Miss O'Brien about a note he had written. Her reply evidently displeased him, and he drew a revolver, firing four shots, one of which took effect in her face. Adams then fired a shot into his head and fell dead.

SETTLEMENT EXPECTED.

Members of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers Not to Strike.

Chicago, Aug. 24.—Officials of the Republic Iron and Steel Co. and the Illinois Steel Co. deny that there is any prospect of labor troubles in steel and iron circles. The report that the wage question is becoming aggravated and that the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers was about to consider whether or not a strike should be inaugurated, the officials of the two big corporations say, is without foundation.

The question of a wage scale has been under discussion for some time past between the union and the employers, but the discussion is being carried on with the utmost harmony, and a settlement is expected within the next two or three weeks.

SENTENCED FOR LIFE.

Quick Justice Meted to the Negro Who Caused the Akron Riots.

Hustled on to Columbus, Where He Is Locked Up, Safe From the Mob—Details of the Rapid Trip and Trial.

Akron, O., Aug. 25.—Lewis Peck, the Negro who raped the little Maas girl and caused the Akron riots, had justice meted out to him at quite a rapid rate. Prison Keeper Washer, of this city, went to Cleveland and had a conference with Peck. The prisoner was willing to plead guilty to attempted assault, the penalty for which is 20 years. Washer said no; that if he would not plead guilty to criminal assault, the penalty for which is life imprisonment, he would be taken to Akron for trial. Lewis shuddered at the very thought, but finally agreed to plead guilty to criminal assault and accept a life sentence.

In the meantime a grand jury here indicted Peck on the charge of criminal assault.

After Peck's agreement to plead guilty to criminal assault he was taken to the depot, where a train was taken for this place.

Just after leaving Cuyahoga Falls, while the train was en route from Cleveland to Akron, Peck begged Prison Keeper Washer to shoot him instantly in the event a mob was awaiting at Akron.

The train arrived here at 3:30. A carriage was waiting at the railway station and the streets to the courthouse were patrolled by the state militia. Peck was hustled into a carriage and in three minutes the courthouse was reached.

Pew who glanced at the rapidly driven carriage suspected that it contained the man the furious mob of Wednesday night wanted to lynch. Peck was taken in at the rear door of the courthouse. There was a stir among the soldiers crowding to the rear of the court room. Judge D. J. Nye, of Elyria, presided. He had arrived in Akron at noon. Two minutes after Peck reached the court, Deputy Sheriff Ed Hershey read the indictment. Peck stood up with manacled hands. He pleaded guilty in a firm voice. His worn eyes shifted nervously about the room. Then he sat down, as a Prosecutor Wanamaker whispered with him briefly.

Then Judge Nye said: "Mr. Peck, you have heard the indictment read charging you with rape. You have pleaded guilty. Have you anything to say?"

"I have nothing to say except that I throw myself on the mercy of the court," replied Peck.

Judge Nye then said: "In crimes such as that to which you have pleaded guilty there is but one penalty provided. That is imprisonment for life. It is the judgment of the court that you be confined in the penitentiary for life. You must pay the costs of this proceeding, and that for the first 30 days of your imprisonment you shall be placed in solitary confinement."

After Peck had been sentenced he was at once taken in a closed carriage to the center street crossing of the Cleveland, Akron & Columbus railway and placed on board the train in charge of Sheriff Kelly and taken on to the state penitentiary at Columbus. So quickly and quietly was Peck brought into the city, sentenced and sent to Columbus that but very few people knew what had transpired. There was no crowd at the railway either when the train arrived or departed.

Columbus, O., Aug. 25.—Peck arrived at the penitentiary in the custody of the sheriff of Summit county at 8:45 o'clock. He felt greatly relieved when the heavy iron gate closed behind him and he realized that he was safe from mob violence. He had little to say and was quickly conducted to a cell.

As they went away Fee staggered to his feet and was knocked down again.

Street Railway Company.

The Paris Street Railway Company, with $20,000 capital stock, has been organized by Dr. H. H. Roberts, W. B. Allen, President of the Central Trust Co., H. A. Power, President of the Power Grocery Co., James Lancaster, of the Paris Telephone Co., and C. Arnsperger, and has been granted a twenty-year franchise by the Paris City Council.

The company is obligated to begin work within a year and to have the line completed within two years. The company is now receiving bids for materials, and it is likely that the work of laying the tracks will be commenced in the early fall, and will be pushed rapidly to completion.

The line will run on Main street from Second to Fourth, from Fourth to Pleasant, South on Pleasant to Tenth, West on Tenth to Main and up Main to the fair grounds. A spur will be run on Tenth street to the L. &amp; N. passenger depot. The company also has under consideration a belt line which will take in the leading parts of Paris.

The line will be equipped with motor cars and trailers and there will be no trolleys or posts or overhead wires. The cars will be first-class and will make quick time.

Paris has long needed a street car line and it is to be hoped that the company will not meet with any difficulties in the construction of the line. This enterprise will be of great benefit to the city in way of enhancing the value of property along the line and will encourage building in the suburbs. Street car lines are paying investments in cities one-third the size of Paris and this enterprise should receive the encouragement and support of every citizen who has the interest of the city at heart.

The gentlemen who compose the Street Railway Company are well known and responsible business men who are amply able to build and equip the line in first-class style. The enterprise is bound to prove a success. Hurry up with the cars, gentlemen.

Yardmaster George Wilder and John Durbin, of the L. &amp; N., narrowly escaped being killed by the cylinder head of the yard engine blowing out Saturday afternoon at the passenger depot. Mr. Wilder was also thrown off and a piece of steel struck a dog which he had in his arms and tore away both of its fore legs and eyes and skull, which saved Mr. Wilder's arm from being broken. Both men were considerably bruised, but were not seriously hurt. Their escape from death was very narrow.

Imperial spectacles and eyeglasses have perfect lenses, always perfectly centered and made of purest material, set in frames of the highest elasticity and consequently of greatest durability, united with the utmost lightness and elegance. When both frames and lenses are scientifically fitted by Dr. C. H. Bowen's system they always give satisfaction for they are perfect. Never buy cheap spectacles, nor of men who do not know how to fit them. You will get poorly adjusted spectacles, of poor, imperfect lenses, and are better off without any glasses than with either of these defects. Buy Imperial spectacles of a reliable, skillful dealer, and they will last longer without change and be cheapest in the end.

We have engaged the services of Dr. C. H. Bowen who will visit our store on the second and last Thursdays of each month and invite all to call and have their eyes examined, for which there is no charge. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

Next visit—Thursday, Aug. 30, 1900. Hello, 170.

IN CALICO.

They've sung the song of the girl in pink,
And the song of the girl in white,
But the singers are few who have praised
The true

Goddess of love and light:
The household fairy whom we all know,
And knowing her love her better so—
The girl in the garment of calico,
Dainty and sweet and bright.

The bloom of her cheeks, the light in her eyes,
Are her beauty and title of health;
And day after day in a modest way
Her neatness is better than wealth.

Old-fashioned? Yes, and we wish her so,
For just like her mother in calico,
With the gentle traits of the years ago,
She's taken our hearts by stealth.

So, in a nectar of roses I pledge
Our dear girls in pink and in white;
To their eyes and their hair and their ways
debonair

I offer my homage to-night:
Yet, deep in my heart I feel and know,
A loftier feeling continues to grow
For the girl in the wrapper of calico,
Dainty and sweet and bright.

The Truth About Tobias.

IT TOOK Hanora quite a time to find out the truth about Tobias. Not that Tobias could ordinarily be considered a mysterious individual. Indeed, he was precisely the reverse. From the cool dawn hour in which he arose to go forth and drive the team for Twist & Taffeta, of which firm he was trusted collector, until his return at 6:30 to the modest flat where his sister—and supper—awaited him, his life was a clean and commonplace page, spread wide for every casual or interested glance. His nights, if less exposed to the are lights of public scrutiny, might as well have been so. For, after eating heartily of the food Hanora had prepared, and referring to the same in admiring terms, he was wont to remove his shoes as unnecessary impediments, place his feet in their well-darned hose upon the chair "beyond," light his pipe, drink the solitary bottle of beer which Hanora permitted him, and read the nightly accumulation of both morning and evening papers until the autocratic spinster who ruled his abode suggested "a decade," and turned the lamp low by way of a gentle but quite sufficient hint.

Tobias was 40—plus five. He had a brickdust skin, pale brows, a pug-nosed nose, and a smile of such sudden, suffusing, apologetic radiance it explained his love for his fellow-men in general and for Hanora in particular. Indeed, his was the only love that had ever come Hanora's way. She had never been guilty of that form of highway robbery known as coquetry. Not that she was unsophisticated. She knew that a woman quick of perception and adroit of finger may appropriate the purse of one who walks her way and suffers incarceration. And she knew also that one who possesses herself of an unappropriated mauline heart not only goes free in the sight of the law, but glories if she will in her guile and in the magnitude of her deeds. Whether the bonds of inopportunity had shackled Hanora Ryan or whether she had preferred maiden triumph to the exaltation of matronhood deponent sayeth not. Anyhow, to get back to the truth about Tobias. On one memorable mid-summer eve he devoured lemon pie without protest. Hanora knew he loathed lemon pie. On the following morning he meekly ate the French toast she set before him, instead of his regulation potato and rasher. This was her second test. For Tobias had frankly declared only two weeks ago that he would eat no more French, or Flemish, or—no, begorra—Boer toast, that was made of stale bread dipped in egg and fried! So there! She began to feel suspicious. He was a good brother, but alarmingly docile when presented with viands for which he possessed an aversion.

She was like the parrot which its owner declared "said little but done a devil of a heap of thinkin'." She thought a good deal in those days. When Tobias suggested bringing a friend home with him to dinner she thought more than ever, albeit she possibly said less.

"To be bringin' a man here for a male!" quoth she. "What kind of a man might he be, now, Tobias?" "Straight as they make 'em!" promptly responded Tobias. "He drives the 'rush' bus. He's a good wan. He'd relish one of your raspberry rolls—that he would, Hanora!" Whereat Hanora blushed in a wintry sunset sort of way and said he might bring his friend.

He did bring his friend. And—to tell the truth—Hanora looked exceedingly well. She had given her black silk skirt a "dip," whatever that mysterious phraseology may mean. And she wore with this a shirt waist of softest lawn, which she had bought at quite an absurd figure because it was one of the smallest sizes. This she had only and delicately laundered. Not that.

"The household art was the only dower she would bring for a gift to him she wed." But the household art shone up in residence on that particular night. Never, thought treacherous Tobias, with a glow at his heart, had any man such a sister, and if it were not for the—here he broke off in an agony of deception which made him temporarily oblivious of the merits of the raspberry roll.

"You ain't eat a bite!" avowed Hanora. Tobias made a sweeping gesture across his Adam's apple. "Clear to me!" he declared, with delicious mendacity.

After supper they went into the parlor. Hanora played on the organ—yes, and sang, too, in a sweet, thin little voice. She sang "The Meeting of the Waters" and "The Kerry Dance" and the "Wearing of the Green." No rag time for Hanora.

"She's a jewel!" commented Dennis Maguire, addressing Tobias Ryan, when they parted on the sidewalk. "Ain't—ain't—timidly, 'there any wan a-cortin'!"

"Nivir a wan!" returned Tobias. He felt so guilty upon his return, he could hardly make the proper responses to the "decade" which Hanora was "giving out." He did not come home until ten o'clock the following night—nor yet the next. He explained his absence by mysterious allusions to "caneuses" and "primaries," thereby soothing Hanora and stultifying his conscience. It was not until Hanora found a rose in the buttonhole of his coat one morning and a little lace trimmed handkerchief in his pocket that her direct doubts were aroused. But even these Tobias explained away.

"Sure the flower cost nothin', Hanora. 'Twas from a bush I was passin' in. And the handkerchief was on the sidewalk. I thought belike you could make use of it."

He was rapidly becoming a beautiful liar.

A week later he refused to go out with Hanora and Dennis on account of the night being damp. He had rheumatism, he said. So his sister and his friend went to the theater and Tobias settled himself to the composition of a long and fervent letter, the accomplishment of which necessitated frequent reference to the pocket dictionary he had bought for this purpose. To make a long story short—and it was not such a long story when all was said—Hanora married Dennis Maguire. Tobias was desolate—disconsolate. He might go to live with them. Dennis had won a treasure. Yes, he might go to live with them after awhile. For the present he would take his meals at a restaurant until sure what could be done with the furniture—and so on.

All through her wedding journey, which lasted full three weeks, it troubled Mrs. Maguire to determine what was the matter with Tobias. She told her new made lord all about his evening absences, his mild acceptance of distasteful viands, his abrupt and eager hospitality toward Dennis—even about the rose and handkerchief. It was not until she had returned to Chicago and went out to the flat where had been passed her years of mature maidenhood that she really discovered the truth about Tobias.

For the flat into which she let herself with her latchkey was altered, decorated, illumined. There were curtains of rosy swissoline at the windows. There were a lot of flowers on the table. A canary sang in a gilded cage, and—what is that? A parrot in the corner—a hat on the sewing machine! Such a frivolous hat—all chiffon and daisies! Hanora turned quite faint. Could Tobias—

"O," cried a radiant little creature fluttering out of one of the Pullman car apartments which serve as bedrooms in the modern flat, "I did not know anyone was here. Take this chair. You are Mrs. Larel, I know. Tobias said the wife of his friend in the shipping department would call. We are not really fully settled yet. Our wedding was quite a surprise to our friends, but really we had been considering it for some time. I was in the ribbons, you know, and became acquainted with Mr. Ryan while at the store. But it seems he had an old maid sister living with him, and having a girl's natural distaste for relations-in-law—though doubtless some of them are kind enough, I suggested to Tobias that it would be better to marry her off if possible before—why—what—"

For Mrs. Dennis Maguire had risen in aguish and stately discomposure. "I am his sister," she said.

"Dear O dear! I'm so sorry! I didn't know—nor suspect—I wish I had kept still! Take off your things! Stay to supper! There—there! You're sweet as you can be—and I'll love you if you let me—indeed, I will."—Chicago Tribune.

Gift to Cronje from Russians.
The piece of plate subscribed for by 29,000 Russians to be given to Gen. Cronje is surmounted by a picturesque group representing a mounted Boer vedette, with rifle on thigh, standing on the lookout on the summit of a steep crag made of a block of porphyry. The base of this block is hollowed out and shows a woman kneeling behind cover and firing a rifle. A young boy half hides behind the woman. The stand is oval in form, measuring 25 by 21 inches, and is of solid silver, richly enameled. The whole piece is three feet in height.

FASHIONABLE TERMS.

Meanings of Some Words Often Used When Selecting Material or Making Gowns.

An exchange gives the following useful list of terms and their meanings:

The choux, so often used to describe hat trimmings, are cabbage-like knots or rosettes of ribbon, silk, tulle, chiffon or any other material.

Bayadere is, of course, running across. Stripes are bayadere when they run across, and, whether it is silks, ribbons, laces or dress goods, or the manner in which trimming is applied, if it is described as bayadere it runs across.

A cabochon, that is so much used in description of girdles, hat garniture, etc., is a round buckle, or brooch. The expression is also used to describe mock jewels—as a cabochon jewel, when they are round; that is, uncut.

Kaiki and khaki are often confused. The first is a Japanese silk, the second a plain woven cotton stuff used for uniforms in tropical climates. It is a sort of tan, as to shade, and promises to be very much worn for wash tailor-styled suits.

Peau de soie is the fashionable and most exclusive fabric for separate waists, its satiny surface being in accord with the mode of satin-like effects in dress goods this season. This silk is woven like grosgrain, but with a rib so fine as to produce a plain face.

WHAT TO TALK ABOUT.

To Be a Good Talker One Must Keep Informed on Topics of the Day.

"The subjects of entertaining conversation are, of course, multiplied by increased knowledge of books, of the world of men and women, music, art and travel," writes Mrs. Burton Kingsland, in the Ladies' Home Journal. "One should be familiar with the current news of the day and the topics occupying public attention, with the names and authors of the new books, and be able to say something worth hearing about what one has read and heard. Many get no further in speaking of a book than that it is dull or interesting. Others give in few words what seems to be its central idea, its characteristics, the time and scene of its action, quoting perhaps some sentiment that has impressed, or vitiating that has pleased. True culture carries with it an atmosphere of breadth—the world and not the village. A woman, lacking it, was said to betray by her conversation a mind of narrow compass, bounded on the north by her servants, on the east by her children, on the south by her ailments and on the west by her clothes! The mind grows shallow when occupied perpetually with trivialities. A course of solid reading is a good tonic. When ignorant of our ignorance we do not know when we betray ourselves."

HOME INSTRUCTION.

How to Combine Play and Study in the Child's Course of Training.

The mother who is able to instruct her child wisely must know something of the meaning and motive of different phases of plant and outdoor life, so as to be able to talk animatedly and lovingly upon the curious ways of nature's children. It is especially the business of parents to instruct their children in natural history, for it ought to be studied out of doors and at such times as they are voluntarily interested. Making collections of plants, stones and shells is the delight of every child, and his happiness would be increased if he could secure from his grown-up friends sympathy with his pursuits, and enlist them often in conversation about his treasures. In the quiet twilight, says Florence Hull Winterburn, in the Woman's Home Companion, may come many charming talks about the stars and moon, the different forms water takes on, and the effects of heat and light. There is a mistaken idea abroad that little children should not be allowed to reason. Rosmini fell into it when he said: "Connections weary." On the contrary, all knowledge of to-day should be joined to that of yesterday, forming an endless chain of personal experience.

To Prepare Steaks and Chops.

A hint from the English concerns the way in which steaks and chops are prepared for broiling in that country. They are always warmed before they are broiled; a process that much enhances their flavor. If cold when placed over the coals they often become charred or scorched on the outside before the meat is cooked through. In an English grill-room they are kept on a warm marble slab until needed. A woman who has lived for several years in England testifies to the superiority of the English steaks and chops, and has adopted the method followed there. In lieu of grill-room conveniences she uses the range itself. Care must be taken that the meat does not become hot, as in that case its juices would be extracted.

How to Clean Chiffon.

Mousseine de soie and chiffon are best cleaned by washing in a pure white soap. After pressing gently between the hands, shake, spread out immediately and iron while wet. If left to dry before pressing the soft material will shrink and wrinkle and the threads will separate in pressing. A few drops of gum arabic dissolved in the water in which the mousseine de soie is rinsed will supply crispness if desired. Washed in this manner, these fabrics have all the appearance of being perfectly new.

MAKES SLAVES FREE.

New Railroad in Africa Will Be the Means of Saving Life and Labor.

There will be less slavery, less suffering, less mortality in Central Africa when the Uganda railway is completed. It is to connect the port of Mombasa, on the Indian ocean, with Lake Victoria Nyanza, that great inland sea which has no other outlet than the unnavigable Nile.

Already it is constructed and in operation as far as the plateau of Kikuyu, that Central African Eden, where English vegetables and fruits flourish and English babies grow fat and strong. It yet remains to build 220 miles to the lake, and for this purpose the British parliament is asked to vote $10,000,000 in addition to the $15,000,000 already dedicated to the entire enterprise, unexpected engineering difficulties having increased the estimate.

The cost, says the New York Journal, is cheap when the humanitarian benefits of the line are considered. It will do away with the infamous system of portage, which, however disguised and however employed by Christian missionaries, represents slavery in its worst form.

Covering this feature of the question an English writer says: "It does not need a keenly imaginative mind to realize the hideous suffering involved in the conveyance of heavy goods 600 miles on the shoulders or heads of human beings. The men engaged in this work were in reality slaves. They started from a coast hatched in moist, tropical heat. Their first task was a forced march across a waterless desert. Next they had to thread their way through miles of thick jungle, then to toil over mountain passes 3,000 feet higher than any summit in the British isles, and, clad in thin cotton, had to sleep without shelter through the bitterly cold nights; then came the long descent through fever-haunted jungles to the great lake."

"Is it surprising that many of the men who started on this terrible six-months' journey to Uganda and back never saw their homes again, and that the pace could only be kept up by a free use of the whip? Is it surprising that the slave trade flourished in East Africa when there was a constant demand by merchants, by missionaries and by government officials for porters for this deadly journey?"

"If the railway had done nothing more than remove this wrong and misery it would be worth the money that is being spent upon it."

From a commercial point of view the reform is very marked. Carriage by the railway over the sections already constructed costs about five cents per ton per mile and takes a few hours; human portage cost about $1.75 per ton per mile and took about six weeks. Up to the end of 1899 the railway carried for the protectorate government 4,900 tons of stores at a cost of $195,000. If these stores had been carried by porters the cost would have been $1,470,000.

Thus the British authorities have already saved more than $1,000,000 against the cost of the railway, and this fact will be quoted to influence parliament in favor of the additional grant asked for.

The Uganda railway traverses about as difficult a country as a railway has ever pierced. In the earlier sections the ground is intersected with deep fissures which have to be bridged, and yet for nearly 200 miles the trains have to carry their own water for the coolies and for the permanent railway staff.

When this belt is crossed the mountains begin, and the line has to wind its way up to a height of 8,000 feet above the sea level. From that height there is a steep descent down into the Great Rift, 50 miles across hilly ground. On the other side there is an equally steep ascent.

Reaching a Decision.

When a case has been submitted to the supreme court, the justices are furnished with a printed copy of the record and of each brief filed, and are expected to study them at their homes before the case is taken up for consideration. The importance of the case and the intricacy of the points involved often extend the discussion over several days, and sometimes months. The discussion being concluded the chief justice calls the roll, and each justice who has heard the argument votes his opinion. Then the chief justice assigns someone, generally the justice who has taken the most interest in the subject, to prepare the opinion, which is privately printed and handed to the other members of the court for criticism. After examination they return it to the author with such comments as occur to them. The author often adopts their suggestions, or they may become the subject of another conference, and are sustained or overruled as the majority may determine. The opinion is then reprinted and read from the bench by its author on the following Monday.—Chicago Record.

He Took It.

"The scoundrelly impudence of these moneyed men is positively brutal. You know I live next door to a plutocrat. Last spring he tried to buy me out. Actually offered me more than my place was worth. Wanted to get rid of me. But I wouldn't sell. No, sir. Then what do you suppose he did? Sent over and said he'd give me ten dollars a week if I'd stop my daughter's singing lessons." "No! What did you do?" "I took the scoundrel's money. I didn't like the singing any better than he did."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

SOME WORK AND SOME PLAY.

This year's yacht race for the Kaiser's Heligoland cup was marked by the victory of a 35-year-old boat, the Fiona, built by the elder Fife.

Seven Harvard students who own and operate automobiles have formed a club and secured quarters for the storing of their machines near the university.

While William C. Whitney is abroad his son, Harry Payne, will attend to the former's racing interests in this country. Young Whitney is a strong athlete, a capital polo player, a good judge of horseflesh and a capable yachtsman.

The longest throw with a cricket ball is understood to be that of a player named Brown, who in 1819, on Walderton common, threw a ball a distance of 137 yards. It must be mentioned, however, that the ball weighed one ounce less than the regulation ball of to-day.

Pieces of sponge are utilized in the formation of a new playing ball, the sections being held together by wrapping cord and covered with a woven fabric, after which the usual cover of hide is put on, making an extremely light and substantial ball for water polo or handball.

"It's gittin' fashionable now, it seems, among the high-tone clubs to buy the most expensive chinyware they kin find," said the good old soul, looking up from her paper. "You don't say!" exclaimed her husband. "Yes, indeed; it says here: 'The Boston club has just paid $2,000 for a new pitcher.'"—Philadelphia Press.

IN "GAY PAREE."

American women are said to be the most handsomely dressed at the Paris exposition.

Two hundred and fifty of the Paris police are mounted on bicycles. They carry a sabre on the handle in the daytime and a revolver at night.

The new way of shaking hands in Paris is to raise the elbow as high as the ear, and take the hand of your friend in yours, very lightly increasing the pressure as the man descends to its original position.

James Allison, a Wichita man, who is serving as Kansas commissioner at the Paris exposition, writes to a friend at home complaining that his official position demanded unwonted compliance with fashion's decrees. "Instead of going about in one-gallus style," says Mr. Allison, "I have to wear a plug hat, a Prince Albert coat, patent leather shoes and gloves—white gloves at that."

A notable character in Paris is Mme. Duperron, who sells newspapers at the exposition of this year, just as she did at the exposition of 1855. Her mother being English, Mme. Duperron speaks that language as fluently as her native French, and her principal trade is in English and foreign newspapers. Lord Henry Seymour, Lord Lytton, the marquis of Dufferin and others of the "old English colony" were her friendly patrons, and many well-known figures in the English and American colonies of today are to be seen at her stall.

ODDS AND ENDS.

More than half the population of the earth has direct access to the Pacific.

The "wickedest bit of sea" is encountered in rounding the Cape of Good Hope for the eastern ports of Cape Colony.

For lithographing, a peculiar variety of stone is required, which comes from the most part from the village of Solnhofen, in Bavaria.

To possess a poodle with the owner's monogram neatly clipped in its curly hair is the latest thing necessary to complete the happiness of the London society woman.

WAKING AT NIGHT.

When I wake up alone at night
I feel as if I had no eyes;
I stare and stare with all my might,
But only blackness round me lies.

I listen for the faintest sound,
And though I strain with either ear,
The dark is silent all around;
It's just as if I could not hear.

But if I lie with limbs held fast,
A sort of sound comes like a sigh—
Perhaps the darkness rushing past,
Perhaps the minutes passing by.

Perhaps the thoughts in people's heads,
That keep so quiet all the day,
Wait till they're sleeping in their beds,
Then rustle out and fly away!

Or else this noise like whirling wings,
That dies with the first streak of light,
May be the sound of baby things,
All growing, growing, in the night.

Children and kitty-cats, and pups,
Or even little buds and flowers,
Daisies, perhaps, and buttercups,
All growing in the midnight hours.

And yet it seems to me a part,
And nothing far away or queer—
It's just the beating of my heart,
That sounds so strange as I lie here!

I do not know why this should be;
When darkness hides the world from sight,
I feel that all is gone but me—
A little child and the black night.

—Mabel Dearmer, in London Spectator.

CHAPTER XXI.—CONTINUED.

Sprague rushed to the speaking-tube and whistled long and loud, after which he placed his ear to the mouth-piece.

"I hear some one walking," he suddenly exclaimed.

The two men listened in breathless silence for an answering call.

"Well, gentlemen, what can I do for you?"

The words came in Murdock's voice.

Sprague's eyes met those of the reporter and saw that the last faint glimmer of hope was gone. In that swift and silent interchange of thought there was resignation to the inevitable doom and the final farewell of two brave hearts.

The spluttering candle gave its last flicker and went out, leaving the prisoners in utter darkness.

The room was rapidly filling with gas and they were beginning to feel its effects.

"We can at least complete our task before we die," said Sturgis, with grim determination.

"Our task!"

"Yes, and insure Murdock's conviction for our murder."

"What chance is there that anyone will ever discover our bodies, since they are destined for Murdock's oblivion tank?"

"Give me your hand," Sturgis replied; "there is a box of matches. I place it here, between us, within easy reach. I want to write a few words to the superintendent of police to explain matters. By that time there will be enough gas in the room to produce a terrific explosion, when we strike a match. We can thus succeed in wrecking this place and calling attention to it. If I should succumb before you do, do not fail to light the match."

While he was speaking the reporter had taken from his pocket a pad and a pencil and had begun to write as rapidly as he could in the darkness.

Sprague's head was beginning to swim and his ears were ringing, but the thought of Agnes Murdock was uppermost in his mind.

"An explosion!" he exclaimed; "no, no; that must not be. What of Agnes? She may be hurt?"

Sturgis continued writing.

"It is the only chance there is of bringing Murdock to justice," he said, firmly.

"But Agnes is innocent of his crimes," urged the artist, in a thick voice. His tongue clove to his palate; he felt his consciousness ebbing.

"Why should she suffer? I am going, old man—I cannot hold out any longer—Promise me that you—that you will not—strike—the match—"

He staggered and fell against the reporter, who caught him in his arms. His own senses were reeling.

"Promise—" pleaded the half-unconscious man.

"I promise," answered Sturgis, after an instant's hesitation.

It struck a chill to his heart to see his friend dying in the prime of youth, strength and happiness.

Suddenly a thought flashed upon him.

"Brace up, old fellow. All is not yet over. The speaking-tube leads to fresh air. Here, put your lips to it and breathe through your mouth."

The artist heard the words and made an effort to obey these directions. With Sturgis' assistance he managed to place his lips to the mouth-piece of the speaking-tube. A few whiffs of comparatively fresh air sent the sluggish blood coursing through his veins and gave him a new hold on life. With renewed vigor came the animal instinct to fight to the last for existence.

As the shadows of death which had been closing in upon him receded, he became conscious of Sturgis' voice beating upon his ears in broken and scarcely audible tones.

"It is—the last chance—Stick—to the tube—When he comes—surprise him—your revolver—shoot—before—"

The reporter was clinging unsteadily to his friend's shoulder. Sprague suddenly realized that Sturgis in his turn was succumbing to the effects of the gas. He sprang back in time to catch the staggering man in his arms.

"Selfish brute that I am!" he exclaimed. "Here: it is your turn to breath!" And he pushed the reporter toward the tube.

"No, no," said Sturgis, struggling faintly; "it cannot be both—and you—have—everything—to live for."

But the artist was now the stronger, and he succeeded in forcing his friend to inhale enough fresh air to restore his departing consciousness.

At length Sturgis, with returning strength, was about to renew the generous struggle with Sprague, when suddenly the place was ablaze with the glow of an electric light.

"He wants to see if his work is done," whispered Sturgis, to his companion.

Then, observing that Sturgis was again on the verge of asphyxiation, he continued hurriedly:

"Fill up your lungs with air, quick!—quick, I tell you. Now drop and feign death. Do as I do."

Suiting the action to the word, Sturgis threw himself upon the stone floor, face downward, and lay motionless, his right hand grasping a revolver concealed beneath his body. Sprague, after a short breathing spell at the tube, followed his companion's example.

After a short interval there came a metallic click, which Sturgis recognized as the sound made by the opening of the slide in the panel of the door at the head of the stairs.

A moment—which seemed an eternity of suspense—followed, during which the prisoners felt, without being able to see, the cold gleam of the steady eyes of Murdock at the grating.

Would he enter? Would he suspect the ruse? Would the two men retain their grasp of consciousness and their strength long enough to make a last fight for life?

These thoughts crowded upon the reporter's brain as he lay simulating death and making a desperate effort to control his reeling senses.

If Murdock were coming he would have to shut off the gas and ventilate the room. What was he waiting for?

"Come in!"

The words were Murdock's as he turned away from the grating and closed the sliding panel.

"An interruption which probably means death to us," whispered Sturgis to his companion; "take another breath of fresh air, old fellow; we must hold out a little longer."

Sprague, however, lay motionless and unresponsive. The reporter shook him violently and turned him over upon his back. The artist's body was limp and inert; his eyes half closed; his face livid.

The reporter himself felt sick and faint. But, with a mighty effort, he succeeded in raising his friend in his arms, and dragging him toward the speaking-tube. There, of a sudden, his strength failed him. His head swam; his muscles relaxed; he felt Sprague's limp form slip from his grasp, tottered, reeled, threw his arms wildly about him for support, and fell, as the last elusive ray of consciousness was slipping away from him.

CHAPTER XXII.

FATHER AND DAUGHTER.

After Sprague had left her, Agnes, shaken by the conflicting emotions of the day, had gone to her room to rest and to prepare for the interview which she meant to have with her father on the subject of her lover and of Chatham.

Having received word that Murdock would remain in his study during the rest of the afternoon, she had taken time to reflect upon what she meant to say, and how she meant to say it. Her visit was not prompted by the desire of a daughter to confide in the great happiness of her life to the loving sympathy of an affectionate parent; but Agnes was punctilious in the performance of what she considered to be her duties, great and small, and she counted it among those duties to obtain, or at any rate to seek, the paternal sanction of her choice of a husband.

Her knock at the door of Murdock's study was answered in the chemist's quiet voice:

"Come in."

As she opened the door, Murdock advanced to meet her. He seemed to come from the direction of the extension.

Miss Murdock sniffed the air.

"Isn't there a leak of gas?" she inquired.

"Yes," replied Murdock; "I have just stopped a leak in the laboratory. Won't you take a chair, Agnes?"

She felt his calm, searching glance upon her; and, in spite of her preparation, she grew embarrassed, as was her wont, in her father's presence.

"Did Mr. Chatham wait to see you this afternoon?" she asked, after a momentary silence.

Murdock observed her narrowly.

"Yes; Chatham has been here to-day. I did not know that you had seen him."

"I could not help seeing him; for he forced his way into the parlor, in spite of all the servants could do to prevent him."

An almost imperceptible furrow appeared between the chemist's eyes.

"Has he been annoying you with his attentions?"

The words were spoken in Murdock's usual tones; but Agnes saw something in her father's eyes and in the firm lines of his mouth which sent a cold shiver down her spine, and caused her pity to go out to the unfortunate young man who had offended her.

"Perhaps he is more to be pitied than blamed," she suggested, gently. "My interview with him was certainly not pleasant; but I bear him no malice."

"Tell me about it," said Murdock, slowly.

Agnes gave her version of the visit, in which, instinctively, she softened, as much as possible, the passion and brutality displayed by the accountant.

Murdock listened in silence until she had quite finished. Then Agnes noticed that his right hand was clenched upon the arm of his chair with a force which caused the muscles to stand out in hard knots. She looked up into his face in sudden surprise.

His features gave no indication of what his feelings might be; and his voice, as usual, was steady and deliberate.

"I am sorry all this should have happened, Agnes. As I told you yesterday, I hoped to save you from this man's importunities. It cannot be helped now. But I think I made it clear to the gentleman that his attentions are as distasteful to me as they are to you. As he seems to have told you, he has been obliged to leave the country—I understand that he has done something or other which makes it safer for him to undertake a long journey. At any rate, we are well rid of him for some time to come, and I think you need have no fear of further molestation."

"What did he mean by saying that he had had encouragement from you?" asked the young girl.

"I am sure I do not know. That was of course a lie out of whole cloth. He came to me with letters of recommendation from good friends of mine, and I therefore occasionally invited him to the house; but that is all the encouragement he ever got from me. We live in the United States and at the close of the nineteenth century the selection of a husband is no longer performed by a stern parent, but is left entirely to the young girl herself. That is certainly my way of looking at the matter. When you find the man of your choice, my only function will be to give you advice, if you seek it, and my best assistance in any event."

The turn of the conversation thus suddenly brought to the surface the topic which occupied the young girl's mind, to the exclusion of all others; and which, for that very reason, had been kept severely in the background up to that point.

"That reminds me," said Agnes, consciously, as a charming flush suffused her beautiful face, "that I have not yet broached the principal object of this interview."

Murdock observed her closely and waited for her to proceed. But Agnes was once more laboring under a strange embarrassment and could not find words in which to frame the confidence she was so reluctant to offer.

Perhaps the chemist divined something of the nature of what she was struggling to find expression for. At any rate, he noticed her embarrassment and endeavored to come to her assistance with a few encouraging words, spoken with unusual gentleness. Agnes, engrossed with her own thoughts, did not notice it; but there was in his manner as near an approach to tender wistfulness as his nature was capable of.

At last the young girl seemed to gather courage, and she was about to speak, when there was a knock upon the door.

"Plaze, sur; there do be two gentlemen in the hall."

"Who are they, Mary?"

"Shure, thin, sir, I dunno, barrin' wan uv 'em do be a policeman."

"Did they ask to see me?"

"They did not, sur; shure they asked if Mr. Chapman was in."

"Mr. Chatham?"

"Yis, sur. And I told 'em he wuz here this afternoon, and I wud see wuz he here now, fur I ain't seen him go yet."

"Well, Mary, you see he has gone, since he is no longer here," said Murdock quietly. "Take the gentlemen into the parlor, and tell them I shall be with them in a minute."

"All right, sur."

After the maid had left the room, the chemist rose from his chair and walked toward the door leading to the library.

"If you will excuse me for a few minutes, Agnes, I shall see what these men want. Wait for me here, if you will. I shall be back directly."

So saying, he noiselessly opened the folding doors and passed into the library, closing the doors carefully behind him.

Freed from the presence of her father, Agnes almost instantly regained her composure. She had not, however, had much time to collect her thoughts, when she was suddenly startled by a loud, shrill whistle, which brought her to her feet in alarm.

"Well?"

She asked the question in anxious tones, as if realizing that life and death were in the balance. Then she placed her ear to the mouthpiece.

At first she could not make out the words spoken by her invisible interlocutor. Then, gradually, they fell upon her ear with terrible distinctness, and she stood spellbound, as in a horrible nightmare, with sudden terror in her staring eyes, and with the fearful sense of impotence in her trembling limbs.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THE SPEAKING TUBE.

Nature has implanted in every one of its living creatures, from the top to the bottom of the scale, the strongest of all instincts—that of self-preservation. As Sturgis fell forward and clutched wildly at the air, his hand struck the stone wall of the square chamber. No conscious impression was made upon his brain by the contact; but, automatically, his fingers tightened as they slipped over the smooth surface. His right hand struck an obstacle and closed upon it, in the convulsive grip of a dying man. Then a sudden gleam of consciousness swept across his sluggish brain.

It was the speaking-tube!

He clung to it with the remnant of his strength and eagerly placed his lips to the mouthpiece. For a few minutes he drank in with avidity the revivifying draughts of air which gradually brought him back from the brink of death.

With returning consciousness, the thought of his dying friend recurred to him in all its vividness. He tried to go to his assistance; but he was sick and faint, and his limbs were powerless to respond to his will. Then, at last, he was seized with utter despair and gave up the struggle.

He had sunk dejectedly upon the chair when a faint and indistinct murmur, as of distant voices, beat upon his ears, whose natural acuity seemed extraordinarily increased by the long nervous tension under which he had been. The ruling passion is strong in death; without knowing just why he did so, Sturgis found himself again at the speaking-tube, endeavoring to hear the conversation, the sound of which evidently came from Murdock's office.

He could barely distinguish a word here and there; but he recognized the timber of one of the voices. It was the chemist's, and his interlocutor was a woman—perhaps his daughter. If only he could reach Agnes Murdock with some word or signal.

In suspense, he held his ear to the mouthpiece, occasionally taking a breath of fresh air to renew his strength.

Should he take the chances and shout in the hope of catching the young girl's attention? If he whistled, Murdock would answer himself, and the last chance would be lost. But would she hear a shout? And, if she did, would not her father prevent her from rendering any assistance? Yet what other chance was there? Poor Sprague was dying; perhaps already dead. There was no time to lose.

THE TIMELY SERMON.

One That Was Unpreparedly Delivered at Great Expense to the Preacher.

Thoreau said that once, having occasion to borrow an ax from Emerson, he took it back sharper than he received it. Although he may do so less voluntarily than Thoreau, the borrower habitually pays interest, and often usury, upon the tools or sentiments which he appropriates.

A shy, nervous clergyman, says the late Bishop How, was once asked to fill the pulpit of a sick friend, for which purpose he hastily borrowed a clearly written sermon, headed, "The Value of Time." He got on very well in the pulpit till he came to a sentence saying that as the parish had no town clock, it was his intention to present one. Being too nervous to skip the sentence, he did actually present the promised clock, which cost him over $300.

Under like circumstances, relates Youth's Companion, another vicar first discovered in the pulpit that the manuscript sermon from which he was preaching had been prepared upon the occasion of a farewell. The allusions to the event being too numerous to be omitted, the vicar spoke boldly of the close of his 12 years' ministry, reduced many of his congregation to tears, and put his wholly unprepared resignation into effect.

An Ohio minister, on the contrary, some years ago decided to close a long pastorate. The carefully concealed satisfaction of his congregation found expression in a farewell reception, and a silver water-pitcher with laudatory addresses. All this so touched the heart of the recipient that he exclaimed: "My dear people, I will not leave you!" and there he is to this day.

Early New York Police.

In 1658 New York had in all ten watchmen. In New England at the same time the constables and watch were all carefully appointed by law, says the Albany Argus. They carried black staves six feet long, tipped with brass, and hence were called "tip-staves." The night watch was called a bell man. He looked out for fire and thieves and other disorders, and called the time of the night and the weather. The pay was small, often but a shilling a night, and occasionally a "coat of kersey." In large towns, as Boston and Salem, 13 "sober, honest men and householders" were the night watch. The highest in the community, even the magistrates, took their turn at the watch, and were ordered to walk two together, a young man with "one of the soberer sort."

Will Be a Woman.

"Henpeck's baby is tongue-tied, they say. Is he going to have its tongue cut loose?"

"No; he says he don't think he will. It is a girl."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Correcting Him.

"I will make you walk the chalk!" exclaimed the angry customer, as he led the milkman through the stream of spilled milk.—Baltimore American.

Be Careful

No woman can be too careful of her condition during the period before her little ones are born. Neglect or improper treatment then endangers her life and that of the child. It lies with her whether she shall suffer unnecessarily, or whether the ordeal shall be made comparatively easy. She had better do nothing than do something wrong.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

Is the one and the only preparation that is safe to use. It is a liniment that penetrates from the outside. External applications are eternally right. Internal medicines are radically wrong. They are more than humbugs—they endanger life.

Mother's Friend helps the muscles to relax and expand naturally—relieves morning sickness—removes the cause of nervousness and headache—prevents hard and rising breasts—shortens labor and lessens the pains—and helps the patient to rapid recovery.

From a letter by a Shreveport, La., woman: "I have been using your wonderful remedy, Mother's Friend, for the last two months, and find it just as recommended."

Druggists sell it at $1 per bottle.

The wolf in the table put on sheep's clothing because if he traveled on his own reputation he couldn't accomplish his purpose. Counterfeiters of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve couldn't sell their worthless salves on their merits, so they put them in boxes and wrappers like DeWitt's. Look out for them. Take only DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. It cures piles and all skin diseases. W. T. Brooks.

Does It Pay To Buy Cheap.

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. oct-27-1y

In India the land of famine, thousands die because they cannot obtain food. In America, the land of plenty many suffer and die because they cannot digest what you eat. It instantly relieves and radically cures all stomach troubles. W. T. Brooks.

Chinese are dangerous enemies, for they are treacherous. That's why all counterfeiters of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are dangerous. They look like DeWitt's but instead of the all healing Witch Hazel they all contain ingredients liable to irritate the skin and cause blood poisoning. For piles, injuries and skin diseases use the original and genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. W. T. Brooks.

HEALTHY OLD AGE

The majority of persons upon reaching middle age and past find their blood becomes weak and thin, and diseases that were easily controlled in earlier life begin to affect the constitution.

Those predisposed to Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Gout and other hereditary troubles may escape till then, but as they age the blood, so long tainted and weakened by accumulated waste matters, is no longer able to properly nourish the body, and it becomes an easy mark for disease. At this critical period of life the blood must be re-enforced before it can perform its legitimate functions and rid the system of these poisons, and nothing so surely and effectually does this as S. S. S.

S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the blood, improves the appetite, and builds up the general constitution. It is not only the best blood purifier, but the best tonic for old people. It warms the blood, tones up the nerves, removes all taint from the blood, and prevents the development of disease.

S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood medicine known. Not one particle of mercury, potash or other mineral poison can be found in it, and it may be taken for any length of time without harm.

S. S. S. is the only remedy that reaches deep-seated blood troubles, like Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Eczema, Tetter, etc. It purifies and restores the blood to a healthy, normal condition, and makes it impossible for any poisonous waste materials to accumulate.

If you have an old running sore or an obstinate ulcer that refuses to heal, or are troubled with boils and carbuncles, try S. S. S. It never fails to make a quick and permanent cure of these pests. If your system is run down and you feel the need of a tonic, S. S. S. will strengthen and help you as it has many others to a happy, healthy old age.

S. S. S. cured Mr. H. Borden of Sausville, Va., of a case of Eczema of thirty-five years' standing, after the best physicians in the surrounding country had failed. This was seven years ago, and there has been no return of the disease.

If you are in doubt about your disease, and will send us a statement of your case, our physician will give you any information or advice wanted, for which we make no charge.

The Chinese ask "how is your liver?" instead of "how do you do?" for when the liver is active the health is good. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are famous little pills for the bowels. W. T. Brooks.

Question Answered

Yes August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers, and grandmothers, never thought of using anything else for indigestion or biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis. Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and bad with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. Sold by dealers in all civilized countries. oct-27-1y

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat so that the body can be nourished while the worn out organs are being reconstructed. It is the only preparation known that will instantly relieve and completely cure all stomach troubles. Try it if you are suffering from indigestion. It will certainly do you good. W. T. Brooks.

Many women suffer all sorts of so called "female weaknesses" just because their kidneys are out of order and they have a right to know Foley's Kidney Cure is just what is needed by most ailing women. Clarke & Kenney.

Neglect is the short step so many take from a cough or cold to consumption. The early use of One Minute Cough Cure prevents consumption. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. It cures all throat and lung troubles. Children all like it and mothers endorse it. W. T. Brooks.
